Time Out says

The London Feminist Film Festival has paired up with Rio Cinema, Genesis and the BFI Southbank for its sixth edition bringing 30 films from female (and non-binary) directors to the capital. Look out for screenings of 'Sama' - the 1988 drama about a young woman seeking an education in rural southern Tunisia - the 'Keepers of Culture' session focusing on African heritage and feminist documentary practices, Nora Philippe's 'Like Dolls I'll Rise', 'Heather Booth: Changing the World' - a documentary on the life and work of the extraordinary campaigner - and a film session curated by queer feminist collective Club Des Femmes. For a full programme of screenings see here (<https://londonfeministfilmfestival.com/>).
